Unique Case Heard by Carlstadt Police Court

Well-Known Farmer Charged With Stealing Seven Hogs from Large Farming Company.

MR. D. W. IRISH HONORABLY ACQUITTED. CASE DROPPED.

This afternoon, Mr. Irish appeared before Justices of the Peace Cotter and Wagner as defendant in the suit brought against him by the Stevens Farming Co. The prosecution intimated their intention of throwing up the case and Mr. Irish was honorably acquitted. M. L. Bell of Davidson & Wil. Medicine Hat, was particularly pleased over the happy turn of events for his client. Costs will be assessed on the Stevens Farming Co. Their lawyers advised Mr. Irish that he made a grave mistake in not advertising the "stray sow."

Saturday afternoon in the Adcock Rooms, saw the opening of the trial of D. W. Irish, the well known farmer, for the charge of stealing seven hogs, from the Stevens Farming Co. Ben Christian a youth at present employed by the Stevens Co., laid the charges, and Justices of the Peace Cotter and Wagner presided. At the end of the afternoon hearing, it was decided to remand the case to Wednesday, that a material witness very much desired by the prosecution might be present. Gordon Fraser of Medicine Hat, prosecuted and M. L. Bell of the Hat, defended Mr. Irish. There were many interesting passages at arms between conflicting counsel.

S. J. Toles an employee of the Stevens Co., was a witness. He told of an affair in December last year, when the late Mr. Stripp at that time manager of the Stevens Farm had taken a black sow back to the Irish farm thinking it belonged to Irish, but had said on return that he had made a mistake, and it wasn't the sow that had on a previous occasion been sold to Irish. This sow, witness said had been retained at the Irish farm.

B. F. Hanson, butcher of Carlstadt was called to testify as to how much meat Irish had bought in the fall of 1912, and winter and spring of 1913. Hanson said that Irish had never prior to three weeks ago had a conversation about hogs, but three weeks ago he had tried to sell witness a pig but did not buy. He said that Irish had bought meat up to the end of Sept. 1912, but had bought none during the winter. To counsel for the defence he stated that many farmers who were able, killed their own stock in winter.

Witness under further cross examining told of Stripp bringing up the "stray". It was put in the corral with the others.

"Why put there?" said counsel.

"Because he said it was ours."

"Do you know if it was advertised in any paper?"

"I do not."

"In any way?"

"I do not know."

"Do you know whose sow that was?"

(Emphatically) "I did not."

"You simply put it in the pen to be fattened."

"No."

"For what purpose?"

"That it be cared for."

"How many pigs were killed on the farm that winter?"

"Four."

"Did you kill any stock outside the hogs?"

"No."

"What size family is there?"

"Six children."

"Keep a man?"

"No."

"Four hogs did you all winter?"

"Yes."

The warm weather is ripening the grain very fast and if you want a good binder to cut your crop don't forget the JOHN DEERE LIGHT DRAFT BINDER. The John Deere Binder takes the lead where it is well known. And you will never be sorry if you get a JOHN DEERE.

We have the JOHN DEERE IRON CLAD WAGON on hand.

We have some PLYMOUTH TWINE on hand yet.

We are sold out of JOHN DEERE STAG sulky plows at this date, which is nothing strange. Steve Swayne took out the last we had on hand and lost the seat going home. Do you suppose that was the fault of the plow, the driver or the salesman?

We have a nice assortment of buggies always on hand.

Overman is the last man to purchase a windmill but there is plenty of wind to use up. Some of the men that have mills are sore because they can not use all the wind. Is it not amusing what some folks will kick about?

When Mr. Goddard gets his big Rumley Separator, he will put all the grain in his neighborhood through in one day, and have to come to Carlstadt to get threshing.

Pumps we have all kinds, don't forget.

Castor machine oil, cream separator oil, cylinder oil, hard oil etc., and dry cell batteries.

And if there is anything else that you want ask us and we will get it for you. Anything at all except money and we don't have any of that.

Carlstadt's Taxes Are Due.

TAXES can hardly be classed as a cheerful subject but they are pleasant things to get out of your mind. Notices in Carlstadt will be issued this week and it will certainly pay ratepayers to pay the little obligations as a ten per cent discount will be allowed if settled before sixty days. The rate and assessment this year as worked out by the Court of Revision is highly equitable.

For town purposes lots are only assessed. They range in value from $75 to $300, corners $25 extra. The rate for the town is 25 mills.

For school purposes all land values are at approximate value and sixty per cent on improvements. Rate 10 mills.

Canada Needs a "Big" Mar.

MUCH has been written about our present system of party government in Canada. Many are professing to believe that nothing but a state of political stupefaction can result from methods which only lead men to oppose measures simply because they have been introduced by a party supposedly hostile. Numbers of earnest men boldly declare that every question affecting the public welfare ought to be discussed on its merits and not from a party standpoint. That a brave advocacy of all reforms, irrespective of party manipulations, would mean honor and loyalty and even profit. More timid spirits discern in such proposals, only revolution and disruption. The Calgary News-Telegram, speaking editorially of "Canada's need for a 'big' man," says: "It is because of a system of government that is somewhat peculiar to Canada that Canada to-day finds herself without, at the head of affairs, either in the Dominion or in any one of the provinces, a single outstanding figure capable of doing big things for the country." The News-Telegram rather over-emphasizes the pressing need for a leader. The Dominion is enjoying a wonderful development. Not so great it is true, as might be experienced under a more capable management, but still great enough to excite the envy of older and more thickly settled countries. Canada will profit by the mistakes made by older and tried civilizations. Although it may appear that she is at present without a leader, yet, never in this world's history has a serious crisis arisen without a champion having come forward to guide the people through the stress and turmoil of whatever trouble has assailed them. So it will ever be, and the trials which must beset the brave pioneers of the West, these trials will cause the prairie to give birth to heroes who shall point the way to destinies undreamed of as yet. Canada is great and before the lapse of many years, she will assume a position and power which will place her in the forefront of all nations.

The Free Methodist Campaign.

FREE METHODISTS have, during the last ten days, come from various parts of the province and made their home in Carlstadt. If enthusiasm merits success these people must have reaped gratifying results from their mission here. Truly it has been a vigorous campaign. Views have been freely expressed concerning the possible benefit to be derived from this brand of missionary work. It must be admitted that great changes have been wrought in the lives of men by this kind of appeal, while again the "conversion" often seems doubtful. The meetings have been under the direction of Elder King of Winnifred. Mr. King has presented his views in a strong, forceful manner and his thoughtful, earnest addresses were listened to by appreciative audiences.

THE Bassano News goes into fits of ecstasy because a farmer raised a few sugar beets. Another wonderful discovery similar to that and there will be no more "tight money." Now, if some enterprising Bassano will raise a real cob of corn, the future of his town will be assured.

BROOKS will celebrate Labor Day, Monday, September 1st. This will be their first big celebration and good committees are arranging a fine programme of sports. There will be a grand baseball tournament, all kinds of races etc. A good time is assured.

dence duties endurable. This class of settlers is desirable. Conditions might be made easier for them with benefit to everybody concerned. Those men who aim to maintain an idle grasp on a half section until they gain a title to it, and who then intend to leave the country, such men are not settlers, and will at length find themselves very disappointed men indeed.

No, a good reason has yet to be furnished to show why the Dominion should sell one hundred and sixty acres for only $480 with a simple condition that a few acres shall be broken. The government does not want prairie on the land. A strong and vigorous farming population is needed which shall make the West, in truth, the granary of the Empire.

To the Editor of Carlstadt News.

Dear Sir,

I am not a homesteader and shall not attempt to discuss any supposed necessity for a revision of the homestead and pre-emption laws. It is generally conceded that the homesteader's life is not a luxurious one by any means, but the average settler does not find it so thorny a path as, apparently, has this disappointed and deluded man, "Lex." Were it one long story of suffering and bereavement the West would not, as is the case, be developing in such a phenomenal manner, and Southern Alberta would not have gained the reputation, of which every true Westerner is proud, of having the finest climate on the continent.

It is questionable whether there is any appreciable emigration to the States, but if so, then bad for the States. Easier regulations might keep in Canada those who, as "Lex" puts it, only wear out the seats of half a dozen pairs of overalls. As he asks, "what use are such settlers?" Uncle Sam does not want them. It may not be possible to cultivate the land to any great extent, but it is common knowledge that many, even at a considerable distance from the railway, have grown crops which have relieved the life from grinding poverty and have made the real-

Interesting Case Postponed. Trial Resumed To-day.

"Did you supply L. C. Jensen with his winter's meat?"
"No, he got milk and eggs and butter but no meat."
"Would you know if any other hogs had been killed on the place?"
"Yes."
"Do you say to Ben Christian, when you were down to the river, that your father had killed seven or nine hogs of the Stevens Farming Co.?"
"I did not say that."
"You are certain you did not?"
"Yes."
"What were your father's instructions regarding this trial?"
"He gave me no instructions."
"Did he tell you to say that too?"
"No."
"Were you and your father on good terms, when you went to the river?"
"Yes fairly."
"Had your brother and father quarreled?"
"Yes."
"Had your sister quarreled with your father?"
"I don't know."
"Do you know where Jensen got his meat in the winter?"
"I do not."
Howard Irish, another son of the defendant was called.

Asked if he had told Ben Christian that his father had killed seven hogs of the Stevens Farming Co., the lad emphatically denied making such a statement. "I did not discuss my father at all he said."
"Did you quarrel with your father?"
"I don't remember doing so."
"There was no friction."
"No I was on good terms with him."
"Did your father last year punish your sister?"
"He may have."
"How old is she?"
"Seventeen."
"Does he whip her?"
"He is not in the habit of doing it."
"Then did he?"
"No sir."
"You are positive."
"Yes."
"Do you know a chap named Jensen?"
"Yes."
"Did your father and Jensen have a quarrel?"
"I don't know."

Witness then told of the killing of five pigs, between November and the end of April 1913, that had supplied the family meat.
Ben Christian who laid the complaint was called. He told of conversation at the river with the Irish boys, in which he swore they had said that their father had taken up seven hogs of the Stevens Farming Co., and killed them. Mr. Bell for Mr. Irish informed their worship that evidence was not admissible as it was merely hearsay, the words of a third party behind his client's back. His injunction was noted and the evidence taken.

Howard Stevens also testified that in November a number of hogs had disappeared from the Stevens farm that had never been found. He "suspected" that they had gone to Irish. This was the last witness called on Saturday. Mr. Fraser said that he had a material witness for whom he wanted to send Constable Stevens of the R.N. W.M.P. and the case was thrown over to Wednesday.

"So far" said Mr. Wagner "the prosecution has made out a very weak case."
"You must admit" said Mr. Fraser that this is a family affair and rather hard to get out the facts.

Advice Concerning the Danger of Late Hours.

Would the midnight teamsters who got about five miles north of town on Tuesday morning, in the early hours with a big team hitched to a hayrack, please note that the road at this point is 60 ft. wide and allows of navigation being conducted with hayracks even when one teamster orders the off horse to "Gee" while his "confederate" neighbor says the opposite to the other horse. The fence posts suffered considerably from the parabolic movement of hayracks, and the next time they leave town at night, they might leave a little earlier in the evening. Some people keep revolvers in their homes and women folks, especially might pull the whole six barrels all at once which would if they hit make a delightfully refreshing system of ventilation in their system.
